Courses completed more than eight years (for those admitted prior to September 2013), and more than seven years (for those admitted in Fall 2013 or later), prior to the date of awarding of a degree may not normally be used for credit toward that degree except on specific recommendation from the department/unit concerned. Courses completed more than ten (10) years prior to the date of awarding of a degree are deemed expired and cannot be used for credit toward that degree.

This recommendation should include an indication that the student possesses a familiarity with current theory in the area of the coursework, notwithstanding the age of the course(s) per se; and that the present requirements of the graduate program would be met with inclusion of the course(s) in question.
