Become an Indigenous Student Ambassador

Are you proud to be an Indigenous student studying at the U of M? Are you interested in sharing your story? Would you like to help promote the U of M to future students? Or are you interested in joining a committee? If so, the Office of Indigenous Engagement and Indigenous Student Centre would love to talk to you!

We are looking for Indigenous students who are interested in volunteering as ambassadors during the 2018-2019 academic year.

Opportunities include:
- Taking part in marketing campaigns – photo shoots, videos, interviews for UM Today and other U of M promotional materials
- Student social media takeovers
- Media interviews
- Speaking at events
- Emceeing events
- Bringing a student voice to various committees

You will only be called upon for activities that you are interested in, so if you don’t want to volunteer to sit on committees, but you love getting your photo taken, we still want to meet with you!

Interested students are asked to contact Ruth Shead, Coordinator of Indigenous Achievement at ruth.shead@umanitoba.ca
