Welcome, bienvenue, pihtikwew, biihdigen, en ya, peehitkiyay, iyuskin kuwa, tunngasugit! Come explore everything the U of M has to offer. Here, it’s about options, community and defining your future. This is your time to be adventurous, challenge yourself and make a difference. More than 2,400 First Nations, Métis and Inuit students are already pursuing their goals at the U of M—and you can too! Experience outstanding programming, a huge variety of academic options and amazing travel opportunities. In this supportive environment, you’ll build friendships and connections that last a lifetime.

At the U of M, Indigenous Engagement is a priority. We are committed to providing a learning environment that promotes Indigenous student success. Our Pathways to Indigenous Achievement plan sees education as a positive, life-changing tool to benefit students, families and communities. We continue to find ways to bring Indigenous knowledge and perspectives into life on our campuses. Many U of M Indigenous graduates have become leaders and role models in their communities, this province, country and around the world.

Come learn about the growing number of opportunities and resources available at the U of M. We can’t wait to meet you!
WHY UNIVERSITY?
Carve your own path with a post-secondary education

Pursuing a university education is a great way to nurture your spiritual, physical, mental and emotional strengths and figure out where your passion lies.

During your academic career, you will be encouraged to think critically, exposed to new and exciting classroom and extra-curricular activities and have the opportunity to meet other Indigenous students who are leaders in their communities.

You will enhance your transferable skills sought by employers such as leadership, communication and time management that can be applied in your future career no matter what field you choose.

At the U of M, you’ll join a culturally rich and diverse community and learn in a way that celebrates your experiences, culture and history.

“...there’s a whole world to see outside of the reserve, and coming to the University of Manitoba was one of the best decisions I’ve ever made.”

– Jesse McGregor, Cree

#DECLAREINDIGENOUS
Be proud of who you are and where you come from. By self-declaring you can:

• Become eligible for scholarships, fellowships, prizes and bursaries dedicated to Indigenous students.
• Receive information about opportunities, jobs, events, supports and more through a bi-weekly Indigenous student e-newsletter.
• Inform statistics that help the university to create and improve opportunities for Indigenous students like you!

Visit umanitoba.ca/indigenous for more information on connecting with the community, academic and cultural support and what’s happening on our campuses.

Note: The U of M does not require documentation or proof of Indigenous identity, although some of our support units may require verification.
EXPLORING THE OPPORTUNITIES
AND THEN ACHIEVE YOUR GOALS

At the U of M, you acquire more than knowledge, you gain new friends and a support circle. That’s what Riley Chartrand realized through his involvement with the Qualico Bridge to Success Program, and the Neechiwaken Indigenous Peer Mentor Program. He was introduced to upper-years students even before classes began and appreciated all the thoughtful advice they shared throughout the year.

“Studying at the U of M was the best decision I ever made. The constant support I’ve been given has made me believe in myself and goals even more. The Indigenous community at U of M have made me realize that my dreams are going to become a reality.”

MIGIZII AGAMIK—BALD EAGLE LODGE
HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Find your comfort zone and your campus family in Migizii Agamik–Bald Eagle Lodge. This space is your home away from home.

“When people come here, they’re coming out of that turmoil or storm of their life and of school. When they come here, they find that peace and calmness.”

~ Elder Charlie Nelson

AT HOME ON CAMPUS

Migizii Agamik is a place where connections grow. Inside, you’ll find a vibrant home base for students with a computer lab, a kitchen, lockers and a large study area. This culturally-rich, sustainable and modern building is a place of pride for the 2,400+ Indigenous students and staff at the U of M.

The heart of the smudge-friendly building is the Circle Room—a sacred and collaborative space for ceremonies, classes and meetings.

Here, we welcome all nations.

Come share with us, come learn with us.

LEARN TO LEAD
AND THEN HELP SHAPE THE FUTURE

As female vice-president of the University of Manitoba Indigenous Students’ Association, Maegan Courchene gained confidence and began to see herself as a leader. This fourth-year Native Studies student wants to eventually pursue a PhD and sees the possibilities as endless. Having found a love of learning, she is determined to bring her voice to the movement combatting injustices facing Indigenous peoples.

“My experience as female vice-president of UMISA [formerly UMASA] has completely changed who I am as a student. I feel as though I am no longer just a student, but I am a student with student advocacy responsibilities. I am very proud…but also very humbled to be seen by my peers as someone they can trust and come to.”

EXPAND YOUR HORIZONS AND THEN CREATE POSITIVE CHANGE

Nicole Luke is excited about the future of Indigenous design. Inspired by her fellow students and professors in the Faculty of Architecture community, she wants to make her own mark with a career that embraces her Inuit roots. Yellowknife-born and Winnipeg-raised, she calls herself an urban Inuk, and hopes to bring her environmental design education to the North through improved housing and the creation of sacred spaces.

“My experience at the U of M has made me think critically about an urban culture versus an Indigenous culture, and how the two may seem contradictory but yet are not. . . . I would like to design a type of architecture that complements the Arctic and its people.”

ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

Several academic programs at the University of Manitoba focus on Indigenous content or are geared towards First Nations, Métis and Inuit students.

NATIVE STUDIES
For over 40 years, the Department of Native Studies at the U of M has been an international leader in the field. Here, you can examine the diversity of Indigenous cultures, histories, spiritualities, languages, literature and visual art as well as the history of colonialism, Indigenous governance, politics and economics.

FACULTY OF GRADUATE STUDIES
Conduct world-class research with a dynamic community of Indigenous students, faculty, staff and alumni. Pursue your education and passion beyond your undergraduate degree. U of M is home to more than 140 degree options at the master’s and doctoral levels, including one of the few graduate Indigenous/Native Studies programs in the country. Here, your experience will be supported with Indigenous-centered academic, cultural, personal and financial supports.

The Access Program, offered by Extended Education, provides you with a support network that allows you to forge your way to a successful academic future. The program is available to all Manitoba residents, with preference given to Indigenous students.

In the Access Program, you will follow a common first year pathway with other new Access students. Small class sizes allow you to develop strong peer support and build relationships before going into your second year.

Access provides supports for various academic pathways:

UNIVERSITY OF MANITOBA ACCESS PROGRAM (UMAP)
If you are pursuing any program of study that leads to a degree or diploma in arts or science at the University of Manitoba, UMAP can provide the supports you need.

HEALTH CAREERS ACCESS PROGRAM (HCAP)
AND PROFESSIONAL HEALTH PROGRAM (PHP)
HCAP is designed to help you prepare for entry to the following health-related programs:

- Medicine, Dentistry, Dental Hygiene, Pharmacy, Medical Rehabilitation Science – Physiotherapy/Occupational Therapy/Respiratory Therapy, Nursing

Once you are accepted, PHP can support your success with the respective program.

Supports include:

- Academic and personal counselling
- Help with funding applications
- Extensive pre-university orientation
- Academic coaching and advocacy

"I don’t know what I would do without the Access Program. People here are our own cheerleaders, our big sisters and brothers, our little sisters and brothers. It’s hard to know where you belong and can feel safe. It’s here."

– Kristin Flattery (UMAP student), Anishinaabe/Dakota, Bachelor of Fine Arts (Hons.) (2017), Faculty of Education

"There are so many supports offered to new students. By believing in yourself and the university, you can create the start of success for our future generations to come. As my first year went on, I started to learn my likes and dislikes. In turn, I was able to form a vision—a foundation towards the start of my journey of becoming a health-care professional."

"LEARN TOGETHER AND THEN DISCOVER YOUR STRENGTHS"

The transition from high school to university, and from a northern community to an urban setting, was a big adjustment for Jesse McGregor. The Access Program offered guidance along the way—and helped nurture his strengths and passion for medicine. By experiencing a variety of courses in University 1, he was able to not only figure out what he liked most but take the first steps toward reaching his goal.

Financial Supports

There are many programs designed to assist you in meeting the financial demands of post-secondary studies. The following section mentions just a few. Be sure to explore all of your options.

Scholarships
Each year, the U of M distributes over $17 million in scholarships and bursaries. Students are automatically considered for entrance scholarships if you apply by March 1, 2019, and meet the academic criteria. Many of the scholarships and awards at the U of M are automatically awarded each year based on academic achievement (no application required).

To be considered for Indigenous-specific academic awards, visit umanitoba.ca/ideclareindigenous to learn how to self-declare.

The BMO Financial Group Indigenous Leader of Tomorrow Scholarship is awarded to exceptional Canadian Indigenous high school graduates who combine outstanding leadership potential with academic giftedness. Each scholarship is valued at $4,000 per year for four years, for a total of $16,000. Students must apply to both the scholarship and the University of Manitoba by December 1, 2018.

Financial Assistance – Bursaries and Loans
Every year, the U of M offers a wide range of bursaries to both new and continuing students who are enrolled in school from September to April, who have demonstrated financial need and who have a minimum academic standing. Bursaries are student awards which do not need to be repaid.

Manitoba Student Aid provides financial assistance to qualifying post-secondary students through loans, grants and bursaries. This option is one way to help you reach your educational goals, but ensure that you are exploring all of your other financial options as well.

Find out more about options, eligibility requirements and how to apply online.

HOUSING AND CHILD CARE

NEW HOME, NEW ADVENTURES

In art, Dee Barsy found peace and healing. And now, as a visual arts facilitator, she encourages Indigenous youth to discover the power of creativity. This fine arts graduate overcame being bullied as a teen and knows how art can nurture the self. It can also enrich a personal journey. For the INSURGENCE/RESURGENCE exhibition at the Winnipeg Art Gallery, she put paint to canvas to share her experience of being adopted into an interracial family.

“I believe that art has the capacity to develop a powerful sense of autonomy in the artist. Through art, I have been able to find peace with my childhood traumas. That is, through art, I have developed my emotional intelligence and personal insight. I can anticipate my actions and their effects. I have become a resilient person.”

CHILD CARE
The U of M has a licensed daycare centre that provides quality child care:

Campus Children’s Centre
Care is available for children 3 months – 6 years old. Be sure to register early, as spots are allocated on a first-come, first-served basis. To place your child’s name on the waitlist, use the online Manitoba Child Care Registry. The Campus Children’s Centre is a welcoming environment that celebrates a diversity of cultures and weaves traditional teachings into its curriculum. Priority access will be given to Indigenous students.

The Province of Manitoba Family Services and Labour Department has created an online Child Care Registry that provides support for families with children. Use the registry to:
• Find licensed child care providers that meet your needs
• Register your children with several providers at once
• Learn more about Manitoban child care providers
• Update your contact information and child care needs

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION

THE PATH FORWARD

The turtle sculpture sits in front of the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation. The turtle is a keeper of truth in Anishinaabeg culture.

The University of Manitoba is committed to the journey of Reconciliation and to advancing Indigenous rights, research and scholarship.

The National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation (NCTR) at the University of Manitoba was born out of the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement, to preserve the history of Canada’s Residential School system and legacy forever.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission’s collection of statements, documents and other materials forms the heart of the NCTR. A shared vision held by those affected by Residential Schools, the NCTR is a place of learning and dialogue where the truths of the Survivors’ experiences are honoured and kept safe for future generations.

“The NCTR houses the largest collection of Indigenous oral history and documents on the Residential School system and its legacy in the country.”

In preserving this sacred collection of materials, the NCTR ensures that:
- Survivors and their families have access to their own histories
- Educators in the K-12, post-secondary, professional and public service sectors understand the shared experience of Indigenous peoples and Survivors
- Researchers can explore the Residential School system and assimilation efforts
- The public can access historical records and other materials to help foster Reconciliation and healing
- The history and legacy of the Residential School system will never be forgotten

We invite you to explore the materials at the NCTR and on the NCTR website in meaningful and personal ways.

You are welcome to visit the NCTR any time during operational hours.

– Chance Paupanakis, Cree, Faculty of Arts
The University of Manitoba campuses are located on original lands of Anishinaabeg, Cree, Oji-Cree, Dakota, and Dene peoples, and on the homeland of the Métis Nation. We respect the Treaties that were made on these territories, we acknowledge the harms and mistakes of the past, and we dedicate ourselves to move forward in partnership with Indigenous communities in a spirit of reconciliation and collaboration.
