Pearson Canada Inc., Toronto, Ontario 2012 (Second Edition)

Other Readings: Your major written assignment is a book review. This will require students to select one book, from a prepared list of books, fictional and non-fictional. These books will deal with different aspects of family life. The list of books and a guideline for doing the book review will be provided in January. This assignment is divided into two components an outline of the book review worth 10% is due February 16th and the full book review is due March 15th

Course Objectives: The purpose of this course is to introduce students to a Sociological approach to the study of the family. The family will be analysed as an institution that both responds to and impacts on our social environment. In particular, we will examine the impact of gender roles on the structure of the family, the division of labour within the family, child rearing and the balancing of work and family life. Guest lectures will be arranged to have researchers and practitioners who study/work with families speak about the nature of their work. Overall the objective of this course is to help students develop an analytic approach to the family.

Course Organization: The Course is divided into four sections: Section 1 considers different methodological & conceptual approaches to the family including Macro, (global) changes in family and reproduction. Section 2 considers the family as a public institution and in relation to other public institutions. Section 3 considers the internal dynamics of families in partnering and parenting. Section 4 considers major challenges to the family, divorce, remarriage, family violence and child abuse & elder abuse.
