About RESOLVE

RESOLVE is a tri-prairie research institute, with offices at the University of Manitoba, University of Calgary, and University of Saskatchewan. The University of Manitoba houses the Administrative Centre of RESOLVE. RESOLVE is a network of academics, researchers, community stakeholders, and policymakers that engages in collaborative (i.e., university and community) research projects on family and gender-based violence. RESOLVE has three broad objectives:

1. Conducting and encouraging practice and policy-relevant research in the areas of family/gender-based violence and violence against women.
2. Providing educational input for various community constituencies and students with regard to the development of research skills.
3. The focused dissemination of research findings to various influential target groups in a manner which raises the probability of their adoption in policy or practice innovation.
